

AFTERMATH

Watchful silence creeps then breaks with cry. Blaming talk. Drowning tears rip from exposed eyes. Unspoken.
You have done this. Remorse, detached then falling from further accusation, translucent. Their guttural grief shared union of sorrow, of sound, echoes.

Lisa Hawkins